CANAAN DIRT ADDS ENDURO CLASS FOR 2011

There are very few changes coming to the Canaan Dirt Speedway in 2011, under the new track lessee, Dick Therrien, but one exciting new change is the addition of an Enduro class at the ¼ mile track located in Canaan, New Hampshire.

“Our Enduros in 2010 were extremely successful, and we are looking to bring this back as a semi-regular division at the track in 2011. This is a bone stock class for racers that don’t want to be a part of weekly competition, stated track lessee, Dick Therrien. These guys and gals just want to go out and have fun. There will be a track champion, and they will race for a small purse each time out. It should be a lot of fun. There will probably race just once or twice a month. It will be open to four, six and eight cylinder vehicles. The races will be 30 laps. This should be a real crowd pleaser as the fans really enjoyed our Enduro racing this past season.”
